Whig and Courier.

John S. Sherwood, Editor.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1848.

☞ The late advices from Mexico prove what was previously asserted, but which the Washington Union positively denied, that the Mexican Commissioners have submitted to Mr Trist a proposition to make Peace on the terms demanded by our Government, through Mr Trist, just previous to the taking of the city of Mexico, and that Mr Trist, although divested of his official authority, has forwarded the proposition to Mr Polk at Washington Now comes the wonder question whether our government is disposed to Peace, or intent upon the entire subjugation of Mexico at the present time—whether in fact Mr Polk means what he says in not desiring the absorption of Mexico and the annihilation of its national existence and name, or whether in spite of his pretences he is bent upon pushing forward to the work of carnage in order to subdue Mexico and bring her under our military and civil authority

The result is one not affecting Mexico merely for if the President resolves as has been suggested by some of his partizans, to throw the treaty or proposition for a treaty, into the fire then there is something to look out for at home—then the continuance of the war through long years, and the expense and trouble of mounts upon a large military force in Mexico—then the change in the great end and aim of our government from the peaceful conquests of subduing the wilderness and increasing the comforts of life and encouraging industry and education and the graces which adorn and elevate life, for the arts and excitements and expenditures which war begets will begin, and of such a permanent and established beginning, and indeed will be the effect upon the business and happiness and progress of our people

Every passing hour seems big with matters of vast importance to the welfare of the people

☞ Fast driving in our streets has become so very common as to endanger the life and limb of pedestrians Those who have horses under their control act as though the public streets of the city were specially prepared as race courses for the trial of the speed of their animals There was, we did hope a city law against fast driving in the public streets but these times may now be declared of the proof of extravagance depends upon its being enforced If some restraint is not put on it and that speedily we fear the city authorities will be censured for their lack of decency

For the Whig and Courier

Rev Mr. Judd's Lecture before the Lyceum

The subject of Mr Judd's lecture as had been announced was 'The Puritans of New England,' and it was treated with great independence

The lecturer showed that the Puritans were from the middle class in the mother country 'neither the head nor the foot,—but the heart' They assumed the name of Reformers—a name which most justly was theirs, and the epithet of Puritan was first bestowed upon them in derision by their opponents Whatever might have been the extravagancies of some of the sects opposed to Popery and Church of England the Puritans were not amenable to that charge Conscientious and unyielding they were men of cool heads and firm the best sense of that word in the church and their principles if carried out legitimately would tend to Democracy in the State They recognized no supremacy dependant in birth or external circumstances—they contended nobly for the equality of all men before God

They had confessions of faith, but no creeds, and the Bible—the Word of God—and that interpreted according to the light of his own individual conscience,—was all that a man was required to accept or assent to to entitle him to the privileges of a Christian and the rights of a citizen

The Puritans had been accused of bigotry, of intolerance, and severity—in part these charges were true but this was the spirit of the age—Much had been said of their persecution of the Quakers and the Anabaptists—and persons holding those views were inflicted with severe penalties—Yet it may be remembered that the Quakers of that time were not the quiet quakers of the present day They blacked their faces, and then went hallooing and bawling into the church during divine service, and thus caused great disturbance Even women among them went naked through the streets

But in those enactments there were the party of progress They first of all people passed laws protecting the wife from the physical and brutal correction of the husband They passed laws making severity and abuse to animals penal And, above all, they took the high moral stand, which no people since their time have taken, that nothing could be legally right which was contrary to the law of God

The Puritans had their faults,—they were too austere,—too austere,—they had not full and consistent views of religious toleration though in this respect, they were much in advance of their age They were often unjust, and sometimes cruel, in their treatment of the aboriginal inhabitants. Yet, compared with any people of their own or any preceding age they were immeasurably in advance of them The system of free public schools, with the innumerable blessings that have followed it, was originated by them It was often thought that their Commonwealth recognized the Union of Church and State. This was not so True, church membership was at one time a condition of citizenship and the right of voting yet persons were constituted church-members by right of having been baptized in infancy Aliens, and those not permitted to vote were allowed to speak or to make proposals in writing at town meetings, equally with the rulers, on any subject which might come up, or which they might themselves propose

The lecturer very reasonably, and I think very pertinently inquired, whether it were any worse for the Puritan fathers of the seventeenth century, to hang a witch or heretic than for their Christian descendants in the nineteenth century, to murder a Mexican for refusing or neglecting to pay his debts'

On the whole, I think no person could have listened to the lecture, without bringing away a higher estimate of the right moral principle, the indomitable firmness and perseverance of the old Puritan fathers and a more charitable view of their characters and such as these very points of which they have been most unjustly and unjustifiably calumniated

P. For one, Mr Editor, I think myself proud of the Puritan blood that seems to run in my veins, and armed with a more unbending determination to make the great laws of moral right—the law of God—the rule of my actions, whether in social and private, or in political life—and with a firmer resolve to do battle for the cause of Right against all principalities and powers in high places,—against church, as dominations of justice and humanity, and the kingdom of God upon earth CANTER

For the Whig & Courier.

The Presidency.

'Alea nitor populis, hasta fulminea.'

Concluded.

Let us use the means then—let us unfurl no banner with the martyr motto In hoc signo no vinces—but let us bear the prophetic heart-stirring words In hoc signo vincet

A candidate before the people under whose lead we may safely open such a banner to the breeze—one whom the people in various sections of the country, with an instinctive appreciation of his high qualities, with an enthusiastic admiration for his great actions and his spontaneous outburst of gratitude for his patriotic services have called to that high position—A call which has resounded from the Rio Grande to the St Croix—which many politicians have tried and are still trying to smother, but which in spite of their efforts, is destined to gather strength as it spreads, and to cease only when it shall have been converted into a shout of triumph in the Spring of 1849

No name known in our history has ever obtained for a succession of momentous deeds in a critical crisis such unive sal approbation—an approbation not marred by a single criticism, nor interrupted by a single censure From the American people he has obtained the exclamation 'well done good and faithful servant' I believe they are disposed to say to him also 'thou has been faithful over a few things, we will make thee Ruler over many things'

Had we no popular meetings—hundreds of formally organized Conventions—and even a single State Legislature have nominated him for the Presidency—a real number of persons have declared him their favorite for that office—and thousands of pens in all sections of the Union, are daily giving expression to the opinions and the wishes of individuals in his favor

From all these manifestations not a doubt can exist, that but for the inviolable principles and the high and lofty sense of an influential portion of Mr Clay's friends Gen Taylor would receive the almost unanimous support of the Whig party for the nomination For the particulars, friends of all the other candidates including the great defender of the Constitution seem tacitly to admit that the time is not ripe to urge the claims of their favorites

But it is objected to Gen Taylor that his election is solely on his military services and that experience in war affords no test of qualifications for the Presidency

It is true that he has become extensively known to the people as all men become known, by the qualities he has developed in the exercise of the functions in which he belongs—yet it is by deeds in accordance with the principles of bravery in the establishment of battles that he has been made so near the favorite of the people—it is because, on the theatre where he has been placed, where he had an opportunity before the eyes of his countrymen and before the civilized world to exhibit unyielding courage, indomitable firmness, unerring judgment, great powers of intellectual combination, keen sagacity, active energy, a humane and benevolent disposition—in fine those moral and intellectual traits of character united with professional skill, which prove him to be not merely a great commander but a great man and fit for any post to which his country may call him

With equal force might this objection have been urged before election to the Presidency of the first statesman of all the world this man was Washington But illustrious qualities had been developed in his military career On the fatal night of Braddock's defeat—at the siege of Boston—at the battles of Trenton and Princeton, at Germantown and the Brandywine at Monmouth and Yorktown—in the campaigns in the Jersey and Pennsylvania—on Long Island and the Hudson River—in the desolate and desolating winter quarters at Valley Forge—in all the disheartened events of the Revolutionary war he had exhibited the talents and disclosed the traits, which placed him 'first in the hearts of his countrymen'—which carried him by acclamation into the chair of the Presidency

He had indeed been for a brief space a member of the Virginia Legislature—too brief a space to disclose any capacity as a statesman—and as a stepping stone to the first magistracy he was chosen President of the Convention which formed the Constitution

But it is not too much to say that when called to that distinguished post his fame rested entirely upon the character he had acquired as Commander-in-Chief of the armies of the Republic

If the character of Gen Taylor does not reach that of Washington in greatness, it resembles and approaches it

Notwithstanding the character of his answers to certain letters which have been addressed to him, if any one can doubt the sound conservative and Whig principles of this distinguished man, after the repeated declarations which on several occasions he has made, after the public assertions of many of his intimate friends and companions, and after the known confidence which very distinguished Whigs of the acquaintance place in his political principles, it is but charitable I think to say of such a one he wish to rather to be in doubt

The pride of opinion, long indulged habits of thought and long cherished predilections sometimes lead experienced politicians in the calm recesses and combinations of the closet into a state of independence and oblivion of the opinions and affections of the people in which a Government like ours it is always unjust and usually fatal consequences to indulge

When well directed—when worthily centered—to follow with boldness and zeal the lead of duty, instead of attempting to change the one and divert the current of the other, is to tread the pathway to success By so doing in 1840 the Whig party achieved a victory more signal, more memorable and more complete than any other recorded in our political history

Let them repeat the experiment in 1848 and sacrificing many of their opinions, and prepossessions to the love of their country and yielding unreservedly to the popular enthusiasm for a favorite, statesman and an able citizen, engage a victory for their cause no less splendid and splendid and which neither the open enemy nor the concealed foe will dare to measure lances with, before by deadly and conspiracy.

Anga Nueva, March 24, 1847.

I have had the honor to receive your communication of January 27, enclosing a private letter ship, and expressing the regret of the Department that the letter copied in that ship which was addressed by myself to Major General Gaines, should have been published

Although your letter does not convey the direct censure of the Department and the President, yet, when taken in connection with the reversal of the paragraph in the regulations of 1825, concerning the publication of private letters concerning operations in the field, I am left in no doubt that I have become a subject of Executive disapprobation To any expression of it, coming with the authority of the President, I am bound by duty to submit, but let my silence should be construed into a tacit admission of the grounds and conclusions set forth in your communications, I deem it a duty which I owe to myself, to submit a few remarks in reply

I shall be pardoned for speaking plainly In the first place, the published letter bears upon its face the most conclusive evidence that it was intended only for private perusal, and not at all for publication It was published without my knowledge, and contrary to my wishes Surely I need not say that I am not in the habit of writing for the newspapers The letter was a familiar one, written to an old military friend, with whom I have been for years in the exchanging opinions on professional subjects That he would think proper, under any circumstances to publish it, could not have been foreseen by me In the absence of proof that the publication was made without my authority or knowledge, I may be permitted to say, the quotation in your letter of the 65th paragraph of the superseded regulations of 1825, in which the terms 'mistaken zeal and disgraceful' are employed to characterize private letters or reports, conveys, though not openly, a censure of conduct which to say the least is rather harsh, and which many think not warranted by the premises

Again, I have carefully examined the letter in question and I do not think that it contains any of the objections urged in your communication I see nothing in it which under the same circumstances I would not write again To suppose that it will give the enemy valuable information touching our plans or respective lines of operations, is to know very little of the Mexican's sources of information, or of their extraordinary sagacity and facilities in keeping constantly apprised of our movements

As to my particular views in regard to the general policy to be pursued toward Mexico I perceive from the public journals that they are shared by many distinguished statesmen, also, in part, by many gallant officers of the navy, the publication of whose names is not, perhaps, obstructed by any regulations of the department It is difficult, then, to imagine how the discussion of mine can render any peculiar aid to the enemy, or speculate disposition I am to enter into negotiations for peace

In conclusion, I would say it has given me great pain to be brought into the position in which I now find myself in regard to the department of war, and the government of this not been of my own seeking If the extent of my abilities and the means placed at my disposal, I have sought faithfully to serve the country, by carrying out the rules and instructions of the executive, but I cannot be conceited that since the constitution of War may the confidence of the department, and, I trust, of the President, has been gradually withdrawing, and my consideration and usefulness correspondingly diminished

The apparent determination of the department to place on me an attitude antagonistical to the government of which I am not the creature in the well known fable of Æsop I ask no favor, and I shrink from no responsibility Well entrusted with the direction of an army, I shall continue to devote all my energies to the public good looking for my reward to the consciousness of pure motives, and to the final verdict of impartial history

I am sir, your very ob't servant,
Z TAYLOR
Major General U S A Commanding.

From the National Intelligencer

Second Letter from Hon. J. R. Poinsett.

WHITE HOUSE, (P. O.)
January 28, 1848

My Dear Sir:—

Feeling very anxious that the subject which I touched upon in my last should be fully understood, I have sought among my papers for documents that may be relied upon and find the following results.

In the year 1809, the most prosperous period in the history of New Spain, before the revolution broke out the revenue of Mexico amounted to $18 783 899, derived from the following sources

Assaying [illegible]	72,506
Duties on silver ingots, bullion gold	21 906
Do on do	2,066 565
Do on silver plate	25 716
Coinage of gold and silver	1,838 259
Tribute of Indians	1,139 961
Alcabalas	2,944 618

Lotteries	109 033
Nenths	192 334
Offices saleable that may be commoned	27,166
Stamped paper	64,900
Half the annats (the annat was a year's revenue of a benefice paid to the Pope by the person promoted to it, the half granted to the King of Spain by his Holiness)	31,338
Official papers	1,035
License for cockpits	35,542
Do Taverns	23,483
Duty on salt	172,992
Public baking &c in Vera Cruz	12,018
Contributions and donations for the war and fortifications	555 942

Custom duties	275 691
Profits from forfeitures &c	87,537

Tobacco sales of	3 927 822
Four per cent deducted from salaries	36,532
Total	$15,693,895
Deduct cost of administration and donations for the war	1,282 202
Nett	$14,441,693

The expenses at that period were something over six millions, leaving about eight millions applicable to the Spanish treasury

Now, if you run your eye over these items, you will see how many an enlightened Government would strike out It is true the custom duties were much increased after the revolution of 1824, but the revenues never sufficed to defray the expenses of the Federal Government After the overthrow of Iturbide the directors of that revolution were in great distress for want of funds The treasury was exhausted, the troops had been subsisted for five months by forced loans, levied on the provinces by their commanders—a state of things which could not exist much longer without causing general discontent They formed the project of a loan of eight millions But to effect this would require six or eight months, and as the dearness they anticipated the prosperity of the government to the amount of a million of dollars, at a discount of twenty per cent, and immediate, with the English house of Hopkins & Co 8 millions on account of the eight million loan of six per cent

Louis continued to people after the establishment of the Federal Government at the request of three or four citizens, for whom the Government provided situations in the custom houses, where they did little else than receive their salaries and pass dismissed. The whole of this sum was expended in two or three years, and Mexico assembly pay the principal in 1837, one year after that period the short but calm lucid interval ended with the establishment of the Empire and the republic the supreme in the constitution

It is right to state here that the Mexican Government was provided by the [illegible]

Correspondence of the N. O. Picayune.

CITY OF MEXICO,
January 15, 1848

On Monday last the commander in chief was informed of a movement designed here to attack the quarters of the officers of the army, and if possible, to take them prisoners or kill them—the plan was, that the population, or so much of it as could be induced to take part in the conspiracy, should rise, and assisted by a body of guerrillas which were to enter the city at a certain hour, make the attack—During the day the commander-in-chief informed all the chief officers of the intended attack, designated rallying points for the different regiments and made every disposition necessary to defeat the insurrection

At night scarcely a Mexican was to be seen in the streets—showing that the whole population had a knowledge of what was to be attempted The precaution adopted, it is supposed, prevented an attempt to execute the plan

If the attempt had been made, there is not an officer in the army, not excepting the commander in chief himself, who could have restrained the troops from sacking the city

During the night, Lieutenant Baker of the 5th Indiana regiment, commanding a patrole, came on eight of two carts near the Plaza de Toros, in the south eastern part of the city one of which contained one hundred stand of arms, he captured; the other he was unable to come up with before it was placed in concealment

Whether Gen Scott has the names of the parties who originated the plot, or not, I do not know, but it is pretty well understood that the chief conspirators are among the soldiers of the Mexican army who assumed citizens dress when an army entered the city, and have returned there since

A conspiracy has been set on foot, in Puebla, to assassinate the Mexican Governor of the state of Puebla, Don Raphael Inzaga, by Gen Rea and some of his worthy associates. These letters were intercepted by Col Childs, from which it appears that their first object was to get Gov Inzaga out of the way by assassination, and then murder some of the peaceable disposed inhabitants of Puebla, seize the reins of government, and proclaim Rea Dictator Gov Inzaga, is known to be a strong advocate of peace.

There have been several skirmishes between small bodies of our troops and guerrilla parties of the Mexicans In one of these affrays, Padre Jarauta, the noted guerrilla chief, was shot at and it is believed wounded, if not killed. His horse, cloak lances &c, were taken, and the saddle was found to be bloody Ten or twelve of the Padre's men were killed and fifteen were wounded The American party were led by Col Jack Hays

A letter from the city of Queretaro says in addition to peace prospects. 'The whole subject rests with the United States—the Government of Mexico is willing to make a treaty and are prepared, and are strong enough to sustain it.' Another writer adds 'Many of the most influential men in the republic, who have heretofore been violently opposed to making a treaty, are now advocating it strongly

The news from Queretaro to the 5th, reports that Anaya was elected President after Santa Anna's resignation, had gone out of office the term having expired and Penny Pena, by right of his office as Chief Justice, filled the vacant chair or had been elected President The Cabinet had been re-organized by the appointment of Sr Rosas as Minister of Foreign Relations and temporary Secretary of the Treasury, Rivs Salazar as Minister of Justice and Pedro Maria Anaya as Secretary of War

Lieut Franklin, of the topographical engineers, who left Monterey on the 13th, reports that just as he left, an express was received from Saltillo, with information that a report had reached there from Col Hamtra'nck to the effect that 10 000 Mexicans under Gen Santa Anna were marching upon Saltillo. Very little credit was attached to the report Our forces were in good condition and will ing to be attached whenever the enemy think best, to strike the experiment"

The correspondent of the North American writes

"Much anxiety is expressed by the President, and cabinet concerning Mr Trist Five different messages have been despatched with his recall without any information being returned as to his views and designs The ground of apprehension is that a treaty of some sort may have been patched up with Mexico, and drills negotiated for the three millions appropriated to be paid, whenever the treaty was signed by the authorized agents of the two governments, and ratified by Mexico

"The letters revoking Mr Trist's powers as Commissioner, would not be communicated to the Mexican Government, and hence they may have proceeded with a negotiation on the basis of his previously recognized authority—These are the opinions, of fears, of Mr Polk in regard to his own agent—and are not concealed by his confidential advocate in the Senate"

Tiverton Shooting Case.

We understand that Mr Barker was examined on Friday and bound over in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the March Court, on charge of shooting one of the individuals engaged in making a disturbance about his house on the night of the marriage of his daughter It is stated five or six persons were wounded by the discharge of the gun of Mr Barker—Newport Herald

☞ The Philadelphia Saturday Courier was bought by Mr M'Makin, its present editor and half proprietor, for $18 000 Its annual profits are $30,000 It is said that Mr M'Makin has previously given a bond that amounted being $30,000. Unfortunately happened this a disagreement arose between Mr M'Makin and Mr Holden and from this circumstance the property has risen in value and Mrs Holden will not get as much now as she was accustomed for it.

Scarlet Fever usually commences with quinsy and sick sea great thirst, headach, redness of the eyes, &c.—In two or three days pricking sensation is experienced, and an eruption of a fiery redness begins to appear, first on the face and arms, and finally a uniform redness covers the whole body

In cases of Scarlet Fever, Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills should be taken every night on going to bed, in such doses as to produce copious evacuations by the bowels. This course, if properly followed up, will in a short time take up the most violent attack of Scarlet Fever, at the same time the digestion will be improved, and the blood completely purified

Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla and Stillingia!

THE articles above named are the principal ingredients in this medicine. With them, antidotes of vegetable origin are combined, designed to render them more active, and consequently more speedy and effective.

The Dock, or rather a species of it, now ranks as a medicinal plant, second to no one of the vegetable kingdom. With the aid of a distinguished chemist, whom the proprietor has associated in the preparation of the compound, he has succeeded in overcoming the difficulty of preserving the extract of the root for any considerable length of time.

For many years the proprietor has tested in his practice the influence of the principal substances of the compound, and is perfectly satisfied that they possess all the properties which have been ascribed to them. Recently he conceived the idea of uniting them, which has resulted in the production of the compound in the ingredients are found to act in harmony, and to give none of the qualities which they separately possess.

A larger portion of Sarsaparilla is soluble than has generally been supposed. The extract must be rather an, and least liable to decomposition, is required in subjecting the root to the action of the menstrua usually employed in extracting its virtues, for a long time, without heat or any other means, being a gent. None is permitted to be used in the compound that has not been obtained by this process and that has been less than a year in preparation.

The Compound is recommended for Scrofula, Scrofulous Humors, Scrofula, Eruptions, and Cutaneous Diseases. Also for the obstructions and disorders arising from sedentary employments, occupations of a harassing and fatiguing nature, intense application, exposures to extremes of heat and cold, over-taking the physical powers, and other abuses of the constitution, among which are Neuralgia, Pleet, Affection of the Liver Bilious Complaints and Dyspepsia or Indigestion.

In diseases of warm climates, with which the proprietor becomes familiar in his practice in Havana, some years since, the compound will prove particularly efficacious, both as a remedy and a preventative.

This medicine has been for some time in use in this city, where the proprietor has passed nearly half a century of his professional life. It was extensively prescribed by him while in practice, and it is believed to be in favor with his medical brethren in general, in whom he is known.

Prepared only by Dr Stephen Cummings, and sold at wholesale and retail by Joshua Burgess, Co. No 143 Middle street, and Edward Moses, No 153 Middle street—only agents for Portland.

Over 1000 OF THE American Air-Tight Cooking Stoves

WERE RETAILED in Boston by Gardiner Chilson, in the shortspace of six months, and a large number have been sold by myself in this city. This Stove is not equalled by any stove in the United States, and the unparalleled sales it has met with fully bespeak its unparalleled merits

HOUSE-KEEPERS should be sure and examine this superior Stove, which has won the admiration of several thousand house-keepers the past season. It has more real and useful improvements than all others combined. The fire-brick Oven-top has proved to be of great value in absorbing the steam and causing the bread to rise and bake light, (equal to the house brick oven.) The brick is found to be more durable than the iron top. It also equalizes the heat around the oven, and a much more even bake is produced in this stove than any other stove known. It has a most perfect arrangement for roasting in front. The Summer arrangement for broiling, boiling, toasting, &c., is complete. The grate clears itself, discharging the ashes into the ash-pit. The fires are large and so arranged as not to fill up with ashes. If surprising to see how small an amount of fuel it requires to perform so great a variety of cooking. Its inviting appearance, substantial construction, and general good qualities, have set it forth to be
